

I'm not in favor of BPL. In other countries where this was tried it has been a failure. There are much better ways of providing broadband internet access. I think the power companies should stick to their core business.